

Payment Systems & Invoicing Worksheet

Payment problems rarely happen by accident — they happen by design. Use this worksheet to build a systematic, professional payment structure for your gig business.

Question 1 — Design Your Payment System (Video 4.1)

Example: I collect 50% upfront before starting. The remaining 50% is due before I release final files. I accept bank transfer and Paystack. If payment is delayed beyond 3 days, I pause all work.

Upfront deposit I will collect...
Balance due...
Payment methods I accept...
If payment is delayed, I will...

Question 2 — Your Payment Options (Video 4.2)

Example: Locally I use Paystack links and direct bank transfer. For international clients I use Payoneer. I now add a 3% fee to cross-border invoices to cover conversion costs.

Local payment methods I use...
Cross-border method (if any)...
How I factor transaction fees...

| ☐ Full name / business name | ☐ Contact information |
| ☐ Invoice number | ☐ Invoice date |
| ☐ Client name & details | ☐ Service description |
| ☐ Agreed price & total | ☐ Payment method |
| ☐ Payment deadline | ☐ Payment terms |

One thing I will add to my invoice...

Question 4 — Your Late Payment Protocol (Video 4.4)

Example: I send a reminder 3 days before due date, again on the due date, and once more 3 days after. If unpaid after 7 days I pause work and withhold final files until cleared.

My reminder schedule...

My follow-up message template...

If unpaid after 7 days, I will...

Question 5 — Your Payment Tracking System (Video 4.5)

Example: I use a Google Sheet with columns for: client name, project, total agreed, deposit paid, balance due, invoice date, due date, and status (Paid / Pending / Overdue).

I will track payments using:

☐ Google Sheets
 ☐ Excel
 ☐ Notion
 ☐ Accounting app
 ☐ Other

The columns my tracker will include...

Question 6 — Building Client Trust Through Transparency (Video 4.6)

Example: I will update my proposal to state: 'Final files released after balance confirmation. Refunds not applicable after work begins. Revisions beyond 2 rounds are billed separately.'

One payment term I will communicate more clearly...

My commitment check-in date to review my system...

Reflection

What is the ONE payment system change you will implement before your next project?
